

that kind while I am able to go on with the great duties which are placed upon me. I cannot imagine what Mr Denne it is to whom you have heard that Miss Ramsay is engaged. I only know the Surgeon, and the two who came to this country to settle: and it does not seem very likely that it should be either of these. If Mr Blunt's Letter is of any importance you can forward it to me: but I suppose it is not, or you would have done so with your last. The weather here has been looking rather chang-able for two days, and is now rather gloomy and cold. But I hope there will be no rain to hinder my proceeding; though for the country in general it is much needed.

Mr Maquoid I presume will have arrived at home before you receive this. I heard from him yesterday and shall write to him by the next post. I desire my kindest love to our dear children; and remembrances to all our friends and neighbours: and be assured my dearest Sally that I have you always in my thoughts and remain your most faithful and affectionate husband
