INTRODUCTION

The Bishop Broughton Memorial Library and its Books

The books of the Bishop Broughton Memorial Library form a unique collection. They represent one of the most interesting and substantial groups of sixteenth to nineteenth century books on religion to be found anywhere in Australia and as such are a valuable complement to research collections of the period in other libraries.

The collection itself is an amalgamation of early books given to Moore College over the years (indicated in the catalogue by the notation "M.L."), with books from the Sydney Diocesan Library which were transferred to Moore College in 1959.

The collection which eventually became the Diocesan Library (designated "D.L." in the catalogue) had its origin in 1810, sixteen years before the Australian Subscription Library was established. Almost from the beginning, controversy has surrounded the books brought to the colony by the Rev. Samuel Marsden, and many of the details of the situation remain obscure to the present day. Two facts, however, are beyond dispute: First, there is no doubt that Marsden, on his return to the colony in February, 1810, brought with him a collection of books which formed thenceforth a library which must be described as at least semi-public (as it was certainly open to clergy, and possibly to others.) Secondly, it is clear that about 70 of the volumes which arrived in the colony at that time have had a continuous existence as the nucleus of what became, under Bishop Broughton, the Sydney Diocesan Library, and now forms part of Moore College Library. These books (indicated in the catalogue by the notation "Bray, 1809"), still bear the original bookplate with the inscription:

"This
Book was given, 1809,
By the Associates
OF THE LATE REV. DR. BRAY,
To the Lending Library
of Port Jackson
In the Colony of New South Wales
And Diocese of London
Established by the
ASSOCIATES,
1809."

("The Associates of Dr. Bray" is a group formed in 1723 by Thomas Bray, the founder of the S.P.C.K. and the S.P.G., which controlled the Free Parochial Libraries which he had set up in various parts of England and the American colonies). These books, though somewhat unprepossessing and perhaps missing some volumes of the original collection, nevertheless represent the oldest extant Library in Australasia.

The Library which had been brought out by Marsden in 1810 apparently resided in his own home from then until about the time of his death in 1838, and little is known of its history during this time.

In 1836 Archdeacon W. G. Broughton was consecrated first Bishop of Australia, and whilst he was in England at this period he had spoken of the importance of "obtaining an addition to our Theological Library". It was Broughton's concern which led a master at Eton College, the Rev. Edward Coleridge (nephew of the poet, and uncle of Bishop Patteson), to publish on Bishop Broughton's behalf, a pamphlet urging people to donate books to the Sydney Theological Library. This Appeal met with a wide and generous response, and the collection of books that the newly-consecrated Bishop brought back to the colony with him is a fascinating one indeed. Among the donors were the Rev. A. P. Stanley, later Dean of Westminster Abbey; the Rev. Prof. E. B. Pusey, the Tractarian; the Rev. F. W. Faber, the hymn-writer; several heads of Oxford Colleges and John Henry Newman, at that time Fellow of Oriel, and Vicar of St. Mary's, Oxford. Newman's gift was a fine seventeenth century folio edition of the Works of St. Jerome (see item 295). Probably owing to the influence of some of these Oxford Tractarians, this collection included sets of the best available editions of the Church Fathers, and even a set of the Tracts for the Times. On the other hand, some of the anonymous donations seem to represent the Evangelical viewpoint in the Church, and included the writings of Puritans such as Richard Baxter, and a copy of the Index of Prohibited Books. Their bookplate has the inscription, "To the Protestant Church in Australia, from some Bachelors and Undergraduates of the University of Oxford. A.D. 1839" followed by the Greek text of Jude 3, ("Contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints,") whereas the bookplate of the rest of the collection runs, "Presented by . . . to the Theological Library in SIDNEY, (sic) AUSTRALIA, for the use of the Bishop and Clergy of that Diocese."

These fine new additions of 1839 include two incunabula, one is Saint Augustine, De Civitate Dei (see item 31). Printed on the Gutenberg Press in Mainz in September 1473 by Peter Schoeffer, this is a splendid folio volume in its original oak boards and blind-stamped calf (somewhat tattered). The book itself is in very fine condition, with capitals illuminated by Lazarus von Andlau. The other is a Liber Epistolarum Sancti Hieronymi printed in Basel in 1497.

Thus the Diocesan Library now included a representative and scholarly collection of several hundred volumes. This had grown around the nucleus of Marsden's 1810 collection and, with small additions, served the theological needs of Sydney Diocese for several generations.

Little is known of the history of the Diocesan Library during the rest of the nineteenth century, except that by the seventies it was housed in the Church Society's Rooms in Phillip Street, where the Diocesan office was also situated. Occasional voices were raised in Synod urging the improvement of the Library in various ways, but on the whole very little seems to have been done, in spite of the exertions of a succession of honorary Librarians. In 1910 some 250 volumes were added, and by 1919 the collection had been moved to Church House, next to St. Andrew's Cathedral in George Street, where it remained with very little change, and apparently very little use, until its removal to Moore College in 1959.

Moore College, Australia's oldest and largest Theological College, was opened at Liverpool in 1856 and in the following year a Chapel was erected as a memorial to William Grant Broughton, the first Bishop of Australia, who had died in 1853. This Chapel was paid for by a gift of £1000 from the Rev. Dr. Samuel Warneford, the English philanthropist. In 1889 Moore College was rebuilt on a site in Newtown, adjacent to Sydney University, and in 1902 the Broughton Chapel was transferred to the new site. By 1952 this Chapel was in danger of collapsing, and as a new Chapel had been built elsewhere, the site of the Broughton Chapel was utilised for a wing of rooms for students in which a large room was set aside as the Broughton Memorial Reference Library. It is in this room that the Broughton collection is at present housed. In 1960 the decision was taken to collect together in the Broughton Memorial Library Room all the books held in the Library printed up to 1840. At the same time books belonging to specific historic collections such as those of 1809 and 1839 which had been dispersed throughout the Diocesan Library, were extracted and re-assembled. In the years following, this Rare Book collection was considerably augmented by the purchase of many more rare books of related subject matter and provenance.

As mentioned above, the Bishop Broughton Library also included some books which had been given to, or acquired by, the general Library of Moore College over the years, and some of these are worthy of special mention. The College Library probably grew very slowly in its early years but it received some books from the Library of Bishop Broughton himself and some from his friend Joshua Watson and in 1873 the Principal in his report to Synod mentioned that a collection of nearly 300 volumes had been presented to the Library by the Oxford and Cambridge University Presses. In 1880 under the Principalship of the Rev. Arthur Lukyn Williams a further 400 volumes were added, with more in the following year. In 1882 Lukyn Williams was able to report that the Library had received a number of books from the collection of Bishop Barker who had died in April of that year. Of particular interest was the gift from the Rev. Robert Lethridge King (grandson of Governor P. G. King, and Principal of Moore College 1868-78) of a very fine folio Missal of the Diocese of Cologne printed in Paris in 1520 (see item 426).

Although there were some notable gifts and bequests throughout the closing years of the nineteenth and the early decades of the twentieth century, on the whole the College Library barely kept abreast of current theological thought let alone filled in the gaps in its earlier material. For several years during World War II the Library was in storage at Springwood. In more recent years however, both the Bishop Broughton Library and the general College Library have been thoroughly catalogued, and have received a steadily increasing volume of new acquisitions both by purchase and gift. Of particular significance was the bequest in 1971 from the estate of the late Mr. Douglas C. Tilghman of Berry, N.S.W., of a splendid collection of Australiana which was added to the already significant College collection of Australiana to form, under the terms of Mr. Tilghman's will, the "Margaretta Mary Woodriff Memorial Library" which is devoted to Australian religious material, and general Australiana.

PREFACE

It is hoped that the publication of this catalogue will serve a twofold purpose: first, it will provide scholars with information as to the existence and scope of the collection; and secondly, it makes a small but significant contribution to the ongoing work of bibliographical description of Australian Rare Book Collections as suggested, e.g. by W. J. Cameron in his Introduction to A Short-Title Catalogue of Books Printed in Britain and British Books Printed Abroad 1641-1700 Held in Australian Libraries (Sydney, Wentworth Press, 1962).

In due course catalogues of the other two sections of the Bishop Broughton Library will be issued: Volume 2 will include books printed between 1701 and 1800, and Volume 3 will cover books printed between 1801 and 1840.

The format of the catalogue has been based on that of H. G. Kaplan, A First Census of Incunabula in Australia and New Zealand, published in 1966 by the Library of N.S.W. The spelling of personal names has usually been made to conform to that used in the catalogue of the British Museum. References are made, where possible, to the published catalogues listed on p. vii, and to the name of the donor of the book (see list of donors on pp. ix-xi), if such can be traced.

The preparation of this section of the catalogue has been very much a team effort by members of the staff of Moore College and others. The actual cataloguing of the books was carried out by the Rev. N. S. Pollard and Mrs. Margaret J. Chivers, assisted in various ways by other members of the staff, especially Bishop D. W. B. Robinson. The Introduction has been written (largely from material gathered by Mr. Pollard), and the work has been seen through the final stages of printing by the present College Librarian, the Rev. N. K. Macintosh.
