DENISE CHAMPION

Denise has been nominated by Uniting Aboriginal and Islander Christian Congress (S.A.) in her role as Covenanting Co-ordinator and the Uniting Aboriginal and Islander Christian Congress as State Chair and Development and Outreach Officer. She is also a member of the UAICC National Executive.

Her academic training was at the Adelaide College of Divinity, Brooklyn Park. Her vocational training was at Yalga binbi Institute, Townsville, Queensland. She speaks English and Adnyamathana.

At present she is working 0.5 time as Covenanting Office, UCA (SA) and 0.5 State Development Officer, UAICE.

She has chosen to study Christian Leadership and Diploma in Christian Ministry at Yalga binbi Institute in Townsville, Queensland. The knowledge and skills gained will enhance and further develop her skills for ministry.

Denise is 54, married with children and grandchildren.

KYOUNGHEE CHO

Kyounghee is interested in the relationship between Australian Literature and Christianity.

She wishes to attend two conferences in 2012 – that of the Society of Asian Biblical Studies in Sabah, Malaysia and the International Meeting of the Society of Biblical Literature in Amsterdam, Netherlands.

These conferences will be of value both in terms of what she will present, and what she expects to learn from attending other sessions and discussions. In turn this will affect her dissertation. A part of her studies is based on Asian understanding of biblical stories. She hopes to help people understand better the multicultural and multi religious situations in Australia.

Kyounghee has a Master of Theology (Honours), Master of Arts in Theological Studies, Diploma in Christian Ministry, Master of Arts in English Literature, and a Bachelor of Arts in English.

Kyounghee is married and is a student.

SARAH DINGLE

Sarah has a B.A. (Honours) and a Ph D from the University of Adelaide. She is enrolled in the first year of Bachelor of Theology at Australian Lutheran College, Adelaide. This is a three year course and she wishes to continue her studies.

Sarah has worked as a teacher/tutor in English as a Second Language, primarily with Korean students. For six years she was an Associate Lecturer in the History Department at the University of Adelaide.

Sarah attends her local Baptist church and has been nominated by the Coromandel Baptist Church Elders. She previously led the youth group for two years and has also been involved in regular ministry trips which have been undertaken with this church.

Her experiences gained from this course will provide a basis for further study in Theology, in order to teach Theology/ Biblical Studies in a Theological Institution or Bible College and to teach the scriptures more broadly across the church as a whole.

Sarah is 30 years of age and is single.
