Mission – Into all the world

Greg Anderson begins at Moore College this year as Head of the Department of Mission, the position Mike Raiter held until he became Principal of the Bible College of Victoria a year ago.

Greg and Mike have a number of things in common. They both have a strong commitment to world mission. They are both married with four children. They both served on Huskisson SUFM team in the early 1980s. But there are also some differences. Greg notes, "Mike has a wonderful gift for humour; I still remember how much we laughed during his Bible studies at Huskisson. He's also taller. I'm still desperately searching for a joke book as I unpack the removal boxes. Mike served two stints as an overseas missionary; the furthest I've been offshore is a holiday in New Zealand twenty years ago."

But Greg does come to Moore with a mission background. He has just returned to Sydney from the Northern Territory, where he was a CMS missionary for twelve years. For the first half of his time in the north he taught at Nungalinga College, the combined churches' training college for the indigenous churches. "The College is a diverse place," Greg says. "During my time there, we had students from traditional Aboriginal and Islander backgrounds, as well as indigenous people from urban and rural areas. The theology teaching staff came from the Anglican, Uniting and Catholic churches. Most of the time we got along together very well, and were enriched by mixing with different people."

From 2001 Greg began a new position as Aboriginal Ministry Development Officer in the Diocese of the Northern Territory. This involved travelling regularly out to the six Arnhem Land churches which were formerly CMS missions, and working with church leaders and others. There was something of a gap following the deaths, retirement or chronic illness of most of the Aboriginal ministers who had been ordained in the 1980s. "It has been a great encouragement over the last couple of years to have had godly people stepping forward, though often slowly, to accept responsibility for the spiritual care of their people after a process of thinking together with their whole church about what it means to be a Christian leader," Greg said.

"So why come to Moore?" Greg acknowledged two particular motivations.

"First, there is a whole world out there that needs the good news of the executed but alive Jesus. There are so many opportunities: evangelism, church planting, ministry training and theological education, pastoral ministry, Bible translation, caring ministries, student work, for ordained and lay people. It would be wonderful if Moore could 'tithe' (or double-tithe!) its graduates (even its Faculty!) for missionary service beyond Sydney. Secondly, there is a sense in which all Christian ministry must have a cross-cultural edge, not just across ethnic lines, but recognising that even within an apparently homogeneous community there will be many differences which we need to be aware of, and engage with, as we undertake gospel ministry."

Please pray for Greg, his wife Annette, and their children, Paul, Zac, Lucy and Jane, as they settle into this new phase of life.

WHAT ARE THEY GOING TO DO?

JOHN WOODHOUSE – PRINCIPAL

What are the graduates from Moore College going to do? I can find no better way of putting it than this:
Him we proclaim, warning everyone and teaching everyone with all wisdom, that we may present everyone mature in Christ. (Colossians 1:28)

Him we proclaim. Our graduates go to proclaim the person of Jesus Christ. This is not simply an intellectual matter. We will only have proclaiming Christ at the centre of our thinking if we ourselves know him, love him, and trust him. Therefore the extent to which our graduates see these things properly will be reflected in their prayer life. To know, love and believe the Person of Jesus Christ will draw us to pray to him.

...warning everyone. There will be an urgency to it, for hostility to Christ, alienation from Christ, is all around us. What a solemn and serious thing we do! In a society that has embraced extreme relativism, in a climate of religious confusion and fear, in a time of anxiety about so many things from terrorism to climate change, in a church distracted by many things: Him we proclaim, warning everyone.

...and teaching everyone with all wisdom. Our graduates will teach the Bible precisely because that is how we proclaim Christ and warn everyone. The one we proclaim is the image of the invisible God. All things were created by him and for him. He is before all things and in him all things hold together. In his resurrection from the dead he is the beginning of the new creation, through whom God has reconciled all things to himself, making peace by the blood of his cross. These are not simple things for people to grasp. They are not self-evident truths. Teaching is needed. To proclaim him our graduates must commit themselves to being the best teachers they can be. They must study, think and prepare.

...that we may present everyone mature in Christ. All Christian ministry is focused on people. Our graduates must love the people to whom they go, and long to see each one "mature in Christ".

That is what they are going to do!

The Greeks...

CON CAMPBELL; GEORGE ATHAS AND ARCHIE POULOS

"So, you're half Greek, huh?"

CON CAMPBELL – LECTURER IN GREEK AND NEW TESTAMENT

"So, you're half Greek, huh? Is your mother Greek, or your father?"

With a little reflection, I'm sure most people could work out from my name – Con Campbell – the answer to that question. There are not many Campbells on Kastellorizo, the tiny dot in the Mediterranean, off the coast of Turkey, where my mother's family is from. Mind you, I did discover a few years back that there were three Scottish kings in the 9th and 10th centuries called Constantine. So I suppose a really informed person could get confused. That's what I assume, when someone asks...

These days I'm quite fond of my Scottish– Greek heritage, though it wasn't always the case. I have a number of likes from both heritages: Scottish– Calvinist theology, and William Wallace (leaving aside for the moment that the Campbells betrayed him); Greek– Kalamata olives, and the language in which I have a PhD. People assume that being half Greek must have helped with that, by the way. I don't see how, since I don't speak Modern Greek, and it's very different from Ancient Greek anyway!

I really enjoyed my first year on the faculty. Faculty, students, and staff were all very welcoming, and I enjoyed getting to know people over the last year. It was particularly good to become part of the Greek coalition on faculty. While Archie and George are more genuinely Greek than I (both parents are Greek), they have not let me feel inferior about it.

My family has enjoyed being part of college too. My wife Bron, and kids Jasmine (5), Xanthe (2), and Lukas (1) are all trendy Newtonians now, having shed our neat, traffic-free Canberra lifestyle. One of us likes pink; one of us likes whatever her sister likes; one of us likes hitting things; one of us likes the beach; and one of us likes jazz and kung fu. We all love Jesus.

GEORGE ATHAS – LECTURER IN HEBREW, OLD TESTAMENT AND CHURCH HISTORY

It's an old cliché, but it's true: the years just go by faster and faster. It seems like it was just a few weeks ago that I joined the faculty at Moore, but it's been over 12 months now. I guess that gives you a bit of perspective on how the year went. It was fast, hectic, busy, chaotic at times, but very rewarding and filled with blessings.

Over the year I got to know the other members of faculty and staff, and saw another side to them. God has truly blessed our College with a community of wonderful,

The Höhnes

David Hohne is a lecturer in Doctrine and Philosophy

After an absence of seven years we find ourselves back in Sydney. We are very thankful to God our Father for the opportunity to take part in the ministry of Moore College. For the past three years we have been living in Cambridge while David completed a PhD in systematic theology. His thesis explored the role of the Spirit in God's plan to redeem the world through Jesus, focussing on how God works through His Spirit to perfect the Messiah as the Son of David and Son of God. The Lord blessed us with a vibrant church family at St Andrew the Great and many opportunities for ministry among graduates of the university. Amelia and the children (Anna 9, Joshua 7 and Samuel 3.5) were also immersed in the local community through their school at Newnham Croft.

Before moving to England we belonged to St Matthew's Anglican Church in Wanniasa, Canberra, where David served first as Associate Minister and later as acting Rector. We began parish ministry in the south of Sydney at Jannali after finishing College in the mid 90s. In our spare time David likes Japanese gardening and playing music. Amelia enjoys running and cooking. The children love reading and watching the television (not at the same time). We are enjoying the chance to reconnect with friends and family, though at the time of writing we are still looking for a church to join.

godly people. It was strange at times relating to students from the upper years— they were, after all, my fellow students just the year before. But, despite the changes, it was good to remember that we were all still brothers and sisters in Christ, sharing the one Spirit and seeking to grow in our love and knowledge of God— and that certainly won't change.

Two highlights are prominent in my mind about 2006. The first was College mission. My mission team, which went to the Hills region of Sydney, was fantastic. Labouring shoulder to shoulder for the cause of Christ's Gospel was truly inspirational. The second highlight was the many conversations I had with students throughout the year about all sorts of things. I hope I was able to be an encouragement to them, as they certainly were to me.

It's wonderful to know that God is using our College for equipping men and women to serve Him, His Church, and His world. We have something very special at Moore, and we must not take it for granted. After all, it has come from God's good hand. Yes, we are far from perfect. But that makes it all the more humbling and exciting to know that God still cares to use us in His historic mission of making Christ known to all people. I for one pray that he will continue to do so until the Lord returns. I hope you join me in that prayer, too.

ARCHIE POULOS – LECTURER IN MINISTRY AND MISSIONS

Archie is Head of the Ministry Department and also lectures in Missions; these are two of his great passions in life. He has written the new course in Bible and Ministry, which was started at College in 2006 and he is keen to see the course kept as relevant as possible for the students. His current research is in urban mission in Sydney and he is gathering information about the lay training. He is also very interested in researching how congregations can become more involved in the ministry of the local church. He has a pastor's heart and works with Keith Condie in helping the students to see that they are the Lord's servants in the world wherever they may be ministering. In his past he has been training coordinator with Ministry Training Strategy for sixteen years.

Archie is married to Ainsley and they have three children. He says that he would dearly love to have enough spare time to have a hobby but that is not possible at this stage of his life, although he does go to his daughter's netball and tries to understand the un-cricket like rules of netball. He is proud of his Greek background and enjoys Greek food.

SAYING GOODBYE

Pato and Dagmar Oyarzun with John Woodhouse

It was hard to say Goodbye to Pato and Dagmar Oyarzun but Pato has finished his MA and so now it is time to head back home to Chile to start in their ministry. Their encouragement and joy in the Lord, which they so easily shared with us all will be greatly missed. Pato will be an assistant minister in an Anglican Church and will also be involved in church planting. Please pray for them as they start this vital ministry.

The Graduates 2007

BACHELOR OF DIVINITY – FOUR YEARS

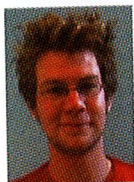

LUKE ARMFIELD: Luke has moved into the position of Curate at St John's, Darlinghurst. Luke would value prayers for God to prepare Jo and him well for this ministry.

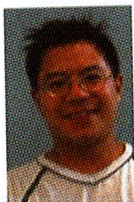

DAVID BARRIE: As Assistant Minister at All Saints' Church Balgowlah, David's primary responsibility will be with the youth ministry. He feels that the training he received at College has given him a framework of theology which has equipped him for ministry.

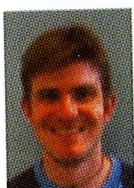

ERIC CHEUNG: Eric and Vivian will be working at St Michael's, Vaucluse. They would appreciate prayer for settling into their new ministry.

PAUL CHEW: Paul and Jo have appreciated their four years at Moore College with all the learning experiences and the friendships they have formed. They ask for prayer for strength and encouragement as they face the challenge of heading to Tasmania for ministry with the Anglican Church in Hobart.

ANDY CHUNG: Andy is thankful for the way God has provided for him and his wife Leisel during their years at Moore. They are saddened at leaving the College and the friendships they've made but look forward to Andy's work as AFES staff worker at the Cumberland Campus of Sydney University. Andy would appreciate prayer for raising support for his work.

JONATHAN CLARE: Teaching, growth and friendship are the blessings Jon is thankful for as a result of his time at College. He now works as Assistant Minister at St Jude's, Bowral. Although Jon and his wife Fiona are a little sad about leaving College, they are very excited about the ministry opportunities that lie ahead.

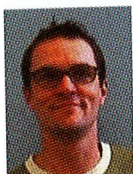

ADAM CLARK: As Adam and Alison move to South Coogee to serve the Anglican Church there, they are thankful for the many things they have learned at College and for the friendships formed. Adam would value prayers for the opportunity to serve the Lord well in his new role.

WILLIAM COLYER: Leaving Sydney and heading north to Queensland, Bill and Linda give thanks for a rich time of learning and fellowship whilst at College. Bill will be working with AFES at the Queensland University of Technology. He would appreciate prayers for the raising of finances for this work.

STEPHEN COOK: Stephen and Samantha have valued their College experience, particularly friendships formed and strengthened, the great teachers, cricket, food and the blessings of a deepening knowledge of God. Stephen is serving as an assistant at St Stephen's, Willoughby.

STEPHEN COX: The opportunity to learn from and share in relationships with lecturers and fellow students are among the blessings Stephen and his wife Annie have enjoyed during their time at College. Stephen now works as Assistant Minister at St Luke's Liverpool and he and Annie look forward to growing together with the congregations in their knowledge and love of God.

AMANDA CURLEY: Mandy now works at The Bible Talks, St Andrew's Cathedral, where she has the opportunity of training and teaching women. She is thankful for the time spent at Moore and for the opportunity of spending six months at Oak Hill, Willoughby.

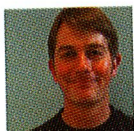

SHANE DIRKS: Shane and Rachel will be working with young adults at Dapto.

DEBORAH EARNSHAW: Deb is working with women and children at All Saints, Cammeray, as well as part time for AFES training female staff. She is grateful for what she learned, for the people she met and for God's provision during her time at Moore.

RODNEY EARNSHAW: In February this year Rod married former student Zoe Holloway, and has now moved to the UK where they will live in Gateshead and work at Jesmond Parish Church in Newcastle-Upon-Tyne. In the second half of the year they will be launching a church plant in Gateshead.

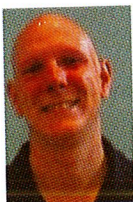

GEOFFREY EVERETT: Geoff is thankful to God for the opportunity to spend four years being trained and equipped for his service. He is also thankful for the friendships formed and the privilege of seeing God at work in people's lives.

CHARLES GAJUS: This year Charles joins the team at Unichurch, University of New South Wales, and is involved in evangelism, teaching and training overseas students. He and his wife Stefani are thankful to God for the many relationships formed during their time at College and for the excitement of knowing God better.

ANTHONY GERBER: As Associate Minister of St Stephen's, Kellyville, Anthony is responsible for the 10.30am congregation begun last year. He and his wife Katie would value prayers for settling their family into this new phase of life and that their ministry at Kellyville will be faithful and fruitful.

MARK GILBERT: Mark is working at Holy Trinity Anglican Church, Kingsford. He and Deb are thankful for the opportunity to grow closer to God during their time at College.

ANTHONY KERR: Ministry for Anthony is divided between working half time with the AFES in the University of Canberra and half with the evening congregation of the Crossroads Church, Canberra. He and Kylie pray that Anthony will be faithful in his wide ministry and will 'find his feet', balancing his time between both jobs.

BERNARD LEO: Bernie and Jennie are currently at St Paul's, Wentworthville while at the same time praying for guidance as to opportunities and decision-making for long-term ministry in Malaysia.

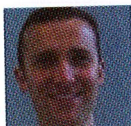

JOSHUA LING: Joshua and Valerie have returned to Singapore to minister at Singapore Katong Presbyterian Church.

EVAN MCFARLANE: Evan has taken up the position of Assistant Minister, Christ Church Gladesville, working with the evening congregation. He greatly enjoyed his time in community at Moore and felt that in the latter 2 years he really understood and appreciated how the College programme is designed and how well it all comes together.

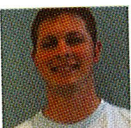

PHILIP MCKEOWN: In December, Philip married former student, Lillian Warwar. Together they minister part-time at Multicultural Bible Ministry at Bossley Park while at the same time, continuing to pray for wisdom in decision-making about long-term ministry overseas, possibly as Bible translators.

BRENDAN MCLAUGHLIN: Brendan, along with his wife Deb, serves at Christ Church, Mortdale.

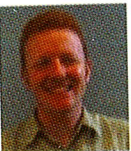

STEPHEN MORRISON: Steve, along with his wife, Penny, is ministering at Willoughby this year.

MICHAEL PAGET: Mike has completed four years at Moore College and is working in congregational ministry and in chaplaincy at UTS.

NIGEL PARKER: Nigel is working as Assistant Minister in the Kiama Parish. He and Lyndal are thankful to God for the four years at College, for the people who have upheld them in prayer and support, for the College itself and the faculty who work so hard to the Lord's glory.

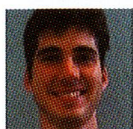

ANDREW PATERSON: Andrew is ministering to the people at Mittagong. He and his wife Cecily would value prayers for their ministry and their family.

JONATHAN PHUA: Jonathan is thankful that during his time at College he and Lika have grown in their relationship with God, built good friendships and learned more about God and his plans through Jesus. He is now working as Assistant Minister at the Anglican parish of Enfield.

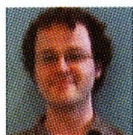

ANDREW PRICE: Provision, forgiveness in Jesus, great training at Moore College and an opportunity to serve the Lord are all reasons Andrew and his wife Michelle continue to praise God. This year their ministry will be at St Cuthbert's Anglican Church, South Carlton.

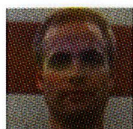

GAVIN ROSSER: Gavin and Megan are praying for outreach opportunities, vision and good relationships as they work at the Parish of Yagoona at Condell Park.

MARTIN SHADWICK: Martin and his wife Jen are working with AFES at Newcastle University.

BYRON SMITH: Byron is working as a ministry assistant at All Souls, Leichhardt with a particular focus on evangelism and discipleship of 20-30's. He is thankful for the privilege of being able to study for 4 years at College.

PETER STEDMAN: Peter and Bree are grateful and thankful to God for his provision over the past 4 years, enabling them to be equipped for ministry. His ministry begins at St Andrew's, Roseville, where Peter works as Assistant Minister.

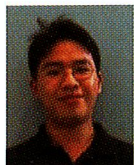

PAUL WHITFIELD: Paul is working as Assistant Minister at Concord Community Anglican Church.

ANTONY WRIGHT: Tony and Susie are ministering to young families at St Alban's, Lindfield.

DANIEL WU: Dan has begun work as Assistant Minister at Cherrybrook Anglican Church with particular responsibilities for young adults and youth. Cherrybrook is a young and growing church with the largest state school in NSW within its bounds (Cherrybrook Tech High) so there is much that he and his wife Chrissie can do. Dan has greatly appreciated the preparation that his four years at Moore have provided both for this ministry and for a lifetime of ministry ahead.

DAVID YUNG: As part of the ministry team at St John's Cathedral, Parramatta, David and Jenny's main responsibility will be to serve the Cantonese congregation and the Young Adults group. They praise God for the experience of College, being equipped for full time ministry, being trained by insightful teachers and being loved by a Christian community.

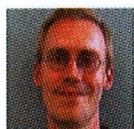

COLIN ADAMSON: Col and Sally are thankful that they are able to continue working at St Luke's, Northmead.

GREG BALL: Greg is thankful for the opportunity of being able to study at Moore, and especially thankful for the support of wife Michelle and other family members. He is working at St Alban's Hurstville Grove.

AMANDA BALLANTYNE: Amanda has completed the Bachelor of Theology and is thankful for the opportunity at Moore College to grow in the knowledge of God and his word.

MARK BARRY: Mark Barry has completed the Bachelor of Theology.

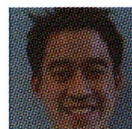

ANDREW BEDDOE: Andrew is working with AFES among International students at Wollongong University.

RUTH BRIGDEN: Ruth is now at St Andrew's Hall in Victoria, training with CMS for missionary work. It is her hope that in the future she will serve the indigenous people of the Northern Territory. During her time at Moore College, Ruth felt that she was provided with a well grounded theological education which has prepared her well for ministry and cross cultural work.

JOHN CHENG: John feels that after three years of sitting under godly teaching of the bible and being encouraged to wrestle with so many important issues of doctrine, he is now equipped for ministry. He is currently working for the Burwood Chinese Presbyterian Church responsible for Ministry Training of young adults.

STEVEN CHONG: After three years at Moore College, Steven is continuing his studies at the Presbyterian Theological College with the aim of becoming a Presbyterian minister. In addition, he and his wife, Naomi (who is in 3rd year at Moore), work for Evangelism Ministries and continue at Cornerstone Presbyterian church.

YUK YEE FOO: Yuk Yee is working as Minister in charge of Children's Church at Adam Road Presbyterian Church in Singapore. He and his wife Karen are thankful for the opportunity of being able to study for three years at Moore and pray that they will be able to serve God's people with the gifts developed at College.

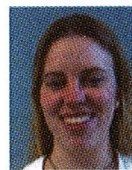

NAOMI HUDSON: This year Naomi hopes to complete a Diploma of Education to support her Diploma of Bachelor of Theology in equipping her to teach Christian Studies in 2008.

PHILIP McMURRAY: Phil is working in full-time ministry at St John's Park.

FIONA MINTON: Fiona and husband Trent (who is completing 4th year at Moore College) are serving at St Bede's, Beverly Hills. Fiona is thankful for the time spent at College and the many things she has learned.

EMMA NEWLING: As Emma awaits the birth of her baby in June, she continues to work part-time in women's ministry at St Andrew's Cathedral and with Mary Andrew's College. Emma's involvement with Moore will continue for another year while her husband Scott continues his studies.

KELLIE NICHOLAS: Kellie is training with CMS at St Andrew's Hall in Melbourne in preparation for work in Japan in 2008. She has been encouraged by the way God has shaped her during her time at College.

ANDREW PEARCE: Andrew is completing his studies at Queensland Presbyterian College. He and his wife Martine are pleased to have had the opportunity to live in College community and to make many lasting friendships.

EMMA POULSON: Emma is greatly enjoying her work at St Cuthbert's, Naremburn.

TIMOTHY ROEDIGER: This year Tim is working with high school students at Nowra Baptist Church.

BACHELOR OF THEOLOGY – THREE YEARS

The Graduates 2007

BACHELOR OF THEOLOGY – THREE YEARS CONTINUED

ROSS RYAN: Ross is now working at Ballina Presbyterian Church. He is thankful for the way God has sustained him and his family during his three years at College.

DAVID SANKARAN: David and his family are serving God's people at Hosanna Baptist Church in Singapore. He is thankful for the privilege of learning at College and for friendships formed.

DARRYL SOH: This year Darryl is ministering at Drummoyne Presbyterian Church. He and his wife Edwina will become parents this year.

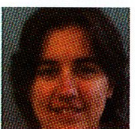

JOSEPH TEO: Joseph is currently working in a pastoral role at a church in Melbourne, Victoria. He considers his time at College to have been valuable in training him to think theologically, preparing him for his ministry and in helping him to be able to defend his faith.

JENNNIFER VON BEHR: Jenny has moved interstate and is working with AFES at the University of Qld. She is thankful to God for her time of learning at Moore and for the friendships she has made there.

RENDALL (MAX) WALKER: Max is now studying at the Presbyterian College in Burwood and is thankful for the wonderful training he has received at Moore which has prepared him for future gospel ministry.

JACQUELINE WATSON: Jacqui is dividing her time between St John's, Sylvania, where she works in women's and children's ministry, and SMBC where she works as a librarian.

ANDRÉ WHEELLEY: Andre works as Training Manager of "Introducing God", training church leaders in relational evangelism. He is also involved with his wife, Sarah, at Christ Church St Ives and Annandale Community Church.

NARELLE WHITFIELD: Narelle hopes to use her ministry training to serve the people at Concord where her husband, Paul, works as Assistant Minister.

PAUL YEATES: During his three years at College, Paul enjoyed having fellowship with people who are sincere and passionate about their faith. He is now enjoying working as a Christian Studies teacher at William Clark College.

FLORENCE ZUNG: Florence has returned to Hong Kong where she hopes to work in ministry.

DIPLOMA OF BIBLE AND MISSIONS

NAOMI ANDERSON: Naomi is thankful for her year at Moore and for the blessing of Christian friends made during her time at College.

LILIAN BAYLISS: Although still involved in College life while her husband Mike continues his studies here, Lil has gone on to study for her Master of Education at Sydney University, to teach English and to proclaim the gospel.

SKYE COATS: Skye is thankful for her time at College and for the friendships made. During 2007 she hopes to be involved in either ministry or teaching while continuing further study through PTC. Skye's husband, James, is in 2nd year at College.

EMILY COLE: Having a year off work while learning and studying has been a very enjoyable experience for Emily. While her husband, Dan, continues in his studies at Moore, Emily hopes to work and prepare for her baby due in April.

RACHAEL COLLINS: This year, Rachael has returned to English and History teaching at Carlingbah High School where she is involved in an ISCF group. She will also continue to serve at Holy Trinity Church, Panania.

MEGAN FROST: Megan has completed the Diploma of Bible and Missions and has returned to work in a law firm in the city.

CATHERINE GEORGE: Cathy is thankful for the opportunity of studying Bible and Missions and for the encouraging relationships she formed during 2006. She will be continuing to be involved at College with her husband Stephen in 2nd year, and enjoying her role as a new mum.

CAROLYN HALLAM: Carolyn has completed the Diploma of Bible and Missions and is currently involved in motherhood while husband, Paul, is continuing his studies at Moore College. Carolyn is thankful for her year at College and for the opportunity of growing in her relationship with God.

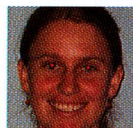

SARAH HILSDEN: Sarah is expecting her first baby in April and hopes to work part-time until then. Her husband, Rowan, is in 2nd year at Moore.

ANDREW JAMIESON: Andy is returning to work in marketing but is thankful for his experience at Moore. He prays for wisdom and guidance in how and where to serve the Lord.

JESSIE LEVY: Jess hopes to return to work as a physiotherapist while her husband, Andrew, completes his final year at College. She is thankful for the opportunity of spending a year studying the bible at Moore.

DIANNE MARTIN: Dianne will continue involvement at Moore College with her husband, Rob, continuing his studies this year. She looks forward to opportunities to minister to family and friends and to the birth of her baby.

MARDI MIDDLETON: For the first three months of 2007, Mardi worked as a physiotherapist while awaiting the birth of her baby in April. Her husband, Brett, has continued his studies as a 3rd year student at Moore.

ARMEN NALBANDIAN: Armen seeks to make the most of every opportunity to proclaim Christ as he ministers to the business community of Chatswood, through St Paul's Anglican Church.

ANDREW NIXON: After completing the Diploma of Bible and Missions, Andrew will continue at The Bible Talks, St Andrew's Cathedral. He thanks God for the relationships formed during his time at Moore College, for the staff and the Bible and Missions Course itself.

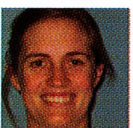

NICOLE PRYDE: Nikki has returned to her previous career in pharmaceuticals and is thankful for the opportunity of setting aside a whole year to learn and spend time in God's word.

ANDREW SILLAR: It is Andrew's prayer that he will be able to use all that he's learned at Moore College in Gospel work. He hopes to work for a mission organization using his past business management experience in conjunction with his year of College training.

JESSICA SMITH: Jess works as a social researcher and, with husband, Byron, serves at All Souls, Leichhardt where she's part of the leadership team and runs a bible study group.

BREE STEDMAN: Bree has begun work as a high school teacher at Roseville College and will support her husband Peter in his ministry at St Andrew's Roseville.

PHILIP STEVENS: In returning to full-time work at Sydney City Council, Philip prays that he will be able to apply all that he has learned at College both at work and at South Carlton church where he will continue to serve.

CHRISTINE WU: This year, Chrissie has returned to work as a primary school teacher while at the same time supporting her husband Dan in his ministry at Cherrybrook Anglican Church.

SUPPORTERS' LUNCH

MOORE AND MISSION

GREG ANDERSON

SPEAKER:

Greg Anderson, Moore College's new Director of Mission

WHEN:

Thursday 19 April 2007, 12 for 12.30pm

WHERE:

Moore College Dining Room, Carillon Avenue, Newtown

COST:

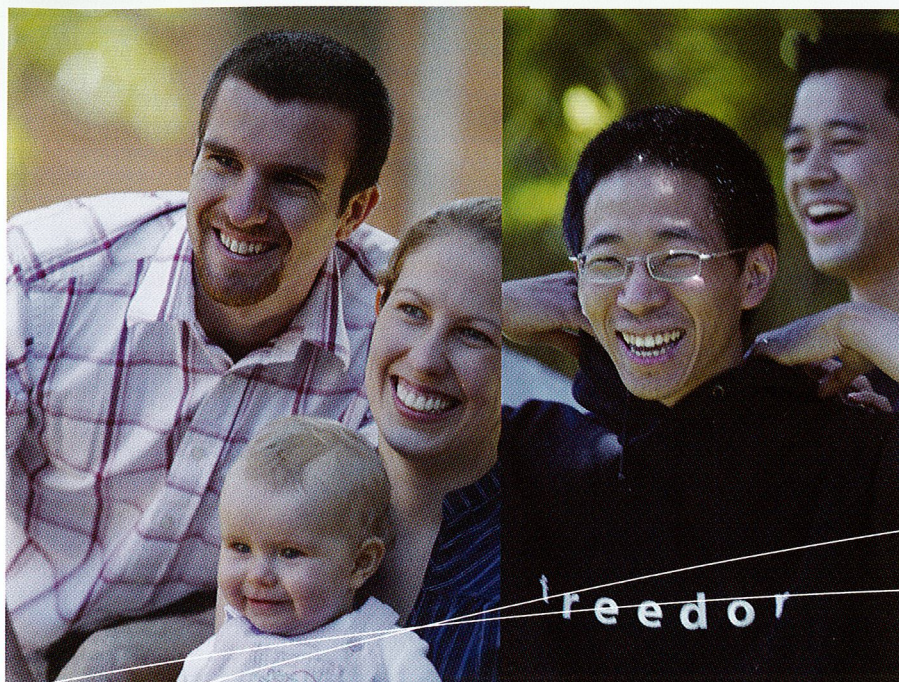

A donation

We are very excited to have Greg Anderson speaking. Moore College has waited twelve months for Greg to come from the Northern Territory where he and his wife, Annette, have been missionaries with CMS. Greg worked primarily with the Aboriginal church, teaching at Nungalinga College in Darwin and traveling to Arnhem Land where there are six Aboriginal Anglican parishes. He worked with local Christians in those places to encourage a new generation of church leaders to emerge and to help churches think through various issues that they faced. He also established a café church at Darwin Cathedral which catered mainly for transient young professionals and tourists. He is keen to keep mission outside Sydney on the agenda of College students as well as seeing the many opportunities that exist in the diverse cultures of Sydney.

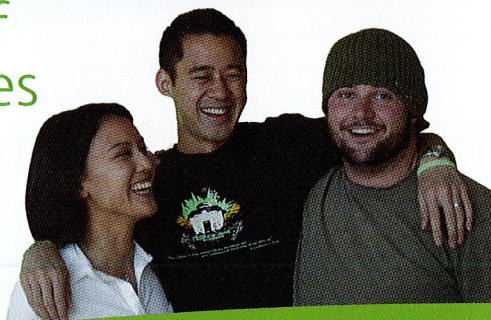

Greg is married to Annette and they have two sons and two daughters in secondary and primary schools. Greg relaxes, when he get time, by playing squash, doing crosswords and cooking.

Don't miss this Lunch with this exciting speaker.
