

As such, what will you do?
What qualifications are necessary?
What may come of it?
Should you do it?

What will you do?

What a privilege God has granted us to be messengers of His Gospel!

What qualifications are necessary?

Secondly, you need trust in God's promises to be a lay visitor. Most people will welcome you, but you may meet discouragement. Some people are indifferent, some stubborn, some careless, few irritable. However, God's promises are ade-

Thirdly, you need a willingness to receive instruction. A lay visitor is not a social caller. He is a messenger of God on a sacred mission. Eternity is involved. Skill and love are needed. Continuous instruction in God's Word and in evangelism is required. Overconfidence spells failure.

What may come of it?

In lay visiting you will be used by God to help other persons accept Christ. He is the only way to the Father. But so many have lost the way. They need to hear what Christ means to you and what He has done for them. Through your simple, earnest words they may find eternal life in Jesus.

You may also be used by God to extend His Church. Christ gave His life for the Church. Yet millions of Australians are outside this holy fellowship of the redeemed. Who will seek them if we don't? Who will point them to the cross?

Still, why should I do it?

I must also fulfil my Lord's Great Commission: "Go therefore and make disciples of all nations." We have Ten Commandments but only one Commission. Jesus gave us eight Beatitudes, but only one Commission. His dearest desire is His last word: He wants to save all!

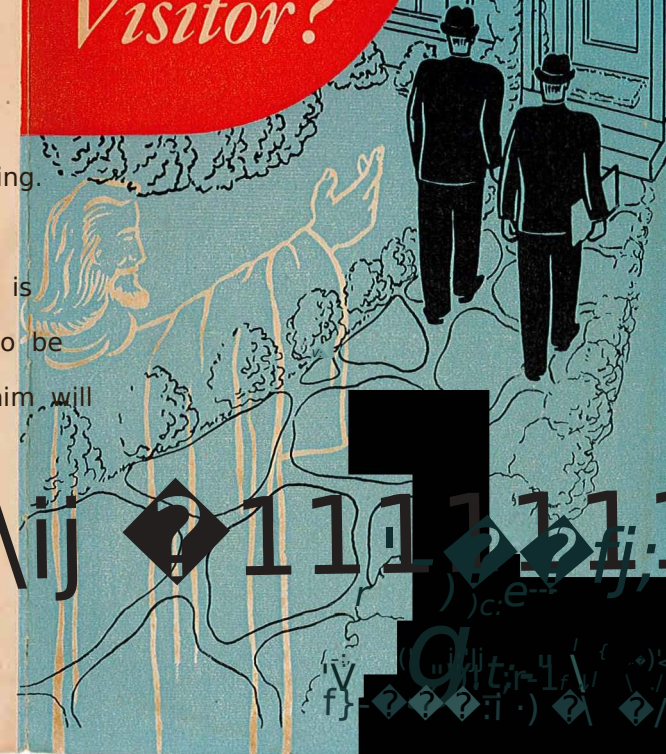

I can thank God for Calvary by lay witnessing. Is there no other way to thank Him? Many other ways but what better way? The divine gift of grace is so priceless. Our "Thank you" must excel. To lead another soul to Christ is the purest "Thank you" possible.

Congratulations upon your opportunity to be a lay witness Claim His promise Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven.

111 ? ? ?
3 2042 10102154 5

EDGAR BRAGG & SONS PTV. LT

Why Be a Lay Visitor?

So you have an opportunity to be a lay visitor!

As such, what will you do?

What qualifications are necessary?

What may come off it?

Should you do it?

Let's explore these questions.

What will you do?

Two Christians are teamed together to make a few assigned calls in behalf of the Lord and His Church. These teams receive instruction. After calling, they gather to report and share experiences.

Tens of thousands are doing this—carpenters, farmers, stenographers, housewives, executives, students, mechanics. New visitors are constantly being added. You have an opportunity to take part in the joy of lay witnessing.

What a privilege God has granted us—to be messengers of His Gospel!

What qualifications are necessary?

First, Christ in your heart. You don't need a college education. You simply need to have experienced God's forgiveness through Jesus Christ. When real, this experience is compelling. You need to tell others what God has done for you.

Secondly, you need trust in God's promises to be a lay visitor. Most people will welcome you, but you may meet discouragements. Some people are indifferent, some stubborn, some careless, a few irritable. However, God's promises are adequate for everything. With His help you cannot really fail.

Thirdly, you need a willingness to receive instruction. A lay visitor is not a social caller. He is a messenger of God on a sacred mission. All eternity is involved. Skill and love are needed. Continuous instruction in God's Word and in evangelism is required. Overconfidence spells failure.

What may come off it?

In lay visiting you will be used by God to help other persons accept Christ. He is the only way to the Father. But so many have lost the way. They need to hear what Christ means to you and what He has done for you. Through your simple, earnest words they may find eternal life in Jesus.

You may also be used by God to extend His Church. Christ gave His life for the Church. Yet millions of Australians are outside this holy fellowship of the redeemed. Who will seek them if we don't? Who will point them to the cross?

You will certainly grow in your own spiritual life by lay visiting. Many visitors acknowledge that they have grown closer to God through this form of service. The more we commend Christ to others, the more He means to us. The messenger comes to know the message best.

Still, why should I do it?

I should be a lay witness because I must share my most precious possession. A Christian shares everything good. The best he shares most. The best possession I have is the love of God in Christ.

I must also fulfil my Lord's Great Commission: "Go therefore and make disciples of all nations." We have Ten Commandments but only one Commission. Jesus gave us eight Beatitudes, but only one Commission. It is His dearest desire. It is His last word. He wants to save all!

I can thank God for Calvary by lay witnessing. Is there no other way to thank Him? Many other ways, but what better way? The divine gift of grace is so priceless. Our "Thank you" must excel. To lead another soul to Christ is the purest "Thank you" possible.

Congratulations upon your opportunity to be a lay witness! Claim His promise: "Whoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven."

EDWARD & SONS PTY. LTD

Why Be a Lay Visitor?

